

JPSME

JUNIOR PHILIPPINE SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

Getting your ticket

Activate your account, register, and show your QR at the 74th JPSME
National Convention

A GUIDE FOR MEMBERS

About 10 minutes. You can do all of it on your phone.

WHAT YOU NEED

Before you start

Your chapter has created a JPSME account for you and sent an activation email. You cannot sign in until you open the link in it — the account has no password yet, and nobody at JPSME has one for you either.

Cannot find the email? Check your spam or promotions folder, and search for "Activate your JPSME account". If it is genuinely not there, ask your chapter officer to send it again — they can do that from the admin page in a few seconds.

You will need:

- The email address your chapter used for you.
- The activation email itself.
- A phone or laptop with a browser.
- A password you will remember. Nobody at JPSME can see it or look it up.

The link expires An activation link works for 14 days and can only be used once. After that it stops working and you will need a new one. Nothing is lost — ask for another.

Setting up your account

1 Open the activation email

Find the email titled "Activate your JPSME account" and tap the gold button that says "Activate my account". If the button does not work, copy the long link underneath it and paste it into your browser.

The page that opens says "Activate your account" and greets you by your first name.

2 Choose your password

Type a password at least 8 characters long, then type the same one again in "Confirm password" so you know you have not mistyped it.

This is yours alone. Nobody at JPSME, including administrators, can see it.

3 Choose your school or organization

Below the password there is a box that says "Your school or organization". Start typing your school and pick it from the list that appears. If you would rather browse, use the step-by-step menus underneath it instead.

Pick the one you actually belong to. Your chapter left this blank on purpose, because you know it and they would be guessing.

4 Press "Activate my account"

That is the whole setup. Your email address is confirmed at the same moment, so there is no separate code to type in.

You will see "Your account is ready", and a button to sign in.

5 Sign in

Use your email address and the password you just chose.

You are now a full member on the site.

Do not share the link Anyone who opens your activation link can set the password on your account. Treat it like a key, not like an invitation.

Registering for the 74th JPSME National Convention

1 Open Events

From the top menu, tap "Events". Find the convention in the list and open it.

You can also reach it from the home page, under "Upcoming Events & Assemblies".

2 Press "Register for this event"

One press is all it takes — your details are already on your account, so there is no form to fill in again.

The button changes to "Registered" and a "View ticket" link appears beside it.

3 Open your ticket

Tap "View ticket". You can always come back to it later from your profile, under "My Registrations".

Your ticket shows your name, your registration number, and a large QR code.

4 Choose your seat, if you are asked to

Some events have assigned seating. If yours does, a "Choose my seat" button appears under the ticket. Tap it, pick a free seat from the plan, and confirm.

Not every event uses seating. If you do not see the button, there is nothing to choose.

Registering is free unless the event says otherwise If the convention charges a fee, the button will say "Register & Pay" instead and will take you to the payment step first. Your ticket appears once the payment is confirmed.

Saving your ticket

Do this before you travel. Venue wifi and mobile data are not reliable, and a ticket you cannot load is a ticket you cannot show.

1 Save the QR as a picture

On your ticket page, tap "Save ticket image". This saves the QR code to your phone as a picture, named after your registration number.

This saves the QR code only — not your name or the event. It is what the scanner reads, and it works with no signal.

2 Or download the print-ready PDF

Tap "Print-ready PDF". This one has everything on it: your name, your registration number, your seat if you have one, and the QR.

Best if you want to print it, or if you would rather hand over paper than your phone.

Do both, if you can Save the picture to your phone AND keep the PDF. If your screen will not scan, the printed copy will — and if you forget the paper, your phone still has it.

Your QR is only yours It belongs to your registration alone and admits one person. Do not post it publicly or send it to friends — anyone holding it can be checked in as you.

At the registration desk

1 Have your QR open before you reach the front

Open the saved picture, or your ticket page, while you are still in the queue. The desk moves faster and so do you.

2 Turn your screen brightness up

This is the single most common reason a scan fails. A dim screen under bright hall lighting is hard for a scanner to read.

Turning off auto-brightness for the day helps too.

3 Hold it steady for the scanner

Hold the phone flat, about a hand-span from the scanner, and wait a moment. The desk will tell you straight away whether you are in.

"Already checked in"

Somebody has already been admitted with your QR. If that was not you, say so at the desk right away — they can see when it happened and can put it right.

"QR code not recognised"

Either the image is not your JPSME ticket, or the screen is too dim to read. Turn the brightness up and try again, or show the desk your registration number instead.

"This code is registered for a different event"

You have opened the ticket for another JPSME event. Go back to your profile, under "My Registrations", and open the one for this convention.

Your phone is dead, or you forgot everything

Give the desk your name or your registration number (it looks like REG-2026-000123). They can find you and check you in by hand.

HELP

If something goes wrong

"This link cannot be used"

Your activation link has expired, or it has already been used. Ask your chapter officer to send you a new one.

"This account has not been activated yet" when signing in

You have not finished the activation link yet. Find the email and open the link — until then there is no password that will work, including any you have tried.

You forgot your password after activating

On the sign-in page, tap "Forgot your password?" and enter your email. You will get a link to choose a new one. That link lasts one hour.

Your email address is wrong

Ask your chapter officer to correct it. They can change it for you, and you will get a fresh link at the new address.

You picked the wrong school when activating

Ask your chapter officer — they can move you to the right organization.

You cannot find your ticket again

Sign in, open your profile, and look under "My Registrations". Every event you have registered for is listed there with a link to its ticket.

Still stuck? Contact your chapter officer first — most of the above they can fix in under a minute. For anything else, use the Contact Us page on the JPSME website.

